Workers on a crane observe as a diamond wire saw is lowered onto a temporary work platform, near the USS Arizona Memorial, Sept. 6, 2025. U.S. Navy's Mobile Diving and Salvage Unit 1, advised by the Navy Supervisor of Salvage and Diving and supported by locally contracted salvors, will soon begin extracting two World War II-era mooring platforms from USS Arizona's hull in support of Memorial preservation efforts. In the aftermath of the attack on Pearl Harbor, the Navy installed the mooring platforms to aid in the salvaging of the Pennsylvania-class battleship's ammunition and armament for reutilization in the ongoing war effort. Torpedo Ram HMS Polyphemus

On the morning of August 14, 1899, the English torpedo boat HMS Polyphemus arrived at the port of Barcelona on a courtesy visit. Apparently, she was a warship like any other, but the difference lay below the waterline. Instead of a bulbous bow, the 2,640-ton, 73-meter-long HMS Polyphemus was equipped with an armored ram that also featured a torpedo tube at the nose. Courtesy of envisitadecortesia.com
